ICS 46 Spring 2018
Tournament Results

A few words of explanation

In order to understand the results as presented, here is an explanation of how the tournament was structured:

- All AIs that were submitted were included in the results below, including the ones that did not compile. Those that did not compile failed for two main reasons:
  - Not placing all of the code into a namespace, which meant multiple students had functions called search or evaluation in the global namespace, which prevented the tournament from linking. (It was necessary for all code to be placed in a namespace, or else it became impossible to link all of it together.)
  - Garden-variety C++ compile errors (i.e., it wouldn't have compiled localy, either).
- For all pairs of AIs i and j, i played two games against j: once with i as the black player and once with i as the white player.
- Any AI that threw an exception from its chooseMove() function, returned an invalid move, crashed, or took too long to make a move (3 CPU seconds on my machine) was immediately disqualified and was not allowed to play any more games. Any games involving disqualified AIs were thrown out of the results, as well.
- After all the games were played, the results of all games between pairs of AIs that were not disqualified were tabulated. Any games played by an AI that was subsequently disqualified were thrown out. As a result, the number of games counted for each AI was the same. There were 287 AIs that survived the tournament without disqualification. Each of them played 572 games (two games against each of the other 286 qualifying AIs).
- The order of finish in the tournament was determined by two factors:
  - The winning percentage, which was calculated using the formula: (wins + (ties / 2.0)) / games_played.
  - The total number of tiles earned in all games played, which was used as a tiebreaker if there was a tie on winning percentage.

44 AIs that compiled and linked were disqualified. Most of these disqualifications were the result of taking too long to make a move, or of choosing a move that was invalid. A handful of others crashed or threw exceptions.

One more reminder: The results of this tournament are purely for entertainment purposes and will not reflect on your grade, except that we will make a note of AIs that didn't compile or that didn't survive the tournament without being disqualified, as one way to determine that there are issues in your implementation.

The results

AI Name is the name under which the AI was registered using the ICS46_DYNAMIC_FACTORY_REGISTER macro. Games indicates how many of the AI's games are included in the results. Win % indicates the winning percentage. Record indicates the AI's total number of wins, losses, and ties in all games. Tiles For is the total number of tiles the AI earned in all of the games it played, while Tiles Against is the total number of tiles the AI's opponent earned in all of the games it played. Separately, a record and a number of tiles for and against is shown when the AI was playing as black and as white.
